

PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS OF TRADE AND TOURISM INDUSTRY DEVELOPMENT IN THE GLOBAL MARKET

The development of world trade is directly related to the development of integration and globalization processes, the improvement of technologies, the deepening of internationalization and division of labor, with the rapid and unlimited dissemination of information flows.

Transnational corporations and banks, international financial and economic organizations form the foundation of international economic relations. This system is constantly being updated, new organizational structures are emerging, old economic entities are adapting to the current conditions of the economic environment and transforming into more stable and viable organizations. Economic relations are becoming more complex and diverse, and the role of companies implementing innovative solutions is increasing.

The structure of industrial production in the Republic of Belarus in 2022:

1. Mining industry — 1,3 %.
2. Manufacturing industry — 89,7 %.
3. Supply of electricity, gas, steam — 7,4 %.
4. Water supply, collection, treatment and disposal of waste — 1,6 %.

Ensuring stability in society and increasing the well-being of citizens through the modernization of the economy, increasing social capital, creating comfortable conditions for life, work and self-realization of a person is the main goal of the country, enshrined in the five-year program for 2021–2025.

To achieve the goal, current development priorities have been identified, the implementation of which focuses on internal and external resources and focuses everyone's work in building the country's future:

Happy family. This is the popularization of traditional family values. A family with children should become not just a social norm in our society, but the ideal of family relations.

Strong regions. These are effective employment, decent incomes, high mobility, comfort and safety of people anywhere in Belarus.

An intellectual country. This is a country of smart, educated, creative people who are able to make innovative breakthroughs and move forward.

The partner country. This is the building of transparent, open, trusting relations between the state, society and business.

In conclusion, completing all purposes, only in case of setting important priorities together, the development of society and market will focus on different kinds of resources and it will contribute to the prospects of the state.
