

the creative participation of a person can be considered an object of intellectual property. Most researchers in this field do not recognize AI as a subject of law, but they identify the criteria under which AI could potentially have legal personality, namely: the presence of a founder – a person who will represent its interests – and the availability of financial security that can be used to compensate for any damage caused [2].

The ability of AI to create intellectual property objects raises questions about its legal personality. In the context of rapid technological development, it is necessary to revise existing approaches to the protection of intellectual property, taking into account the features associated with the use of AI.

As a result of this study, the concepts of intellectual property and AI were clarified, the international institution regulating intellectual property issues was identified, the legal status of objects generated by AI was determined, and its potential capacity to be considered a subject of law was explored.

INTEGRATION POTENTIAL OF THE REPUBLIC OF KOREA

Интеграционный потенциал Республики Корея

Modern political and economic relations between the world's different countries are characterized by some tension due to their interests clashing. Each of them strives for their state's world domination and prosperity. However, it turns out to be quite problematic to implement such plans today, since political tensions are observed in the world all regions.

The given study purpose is to consider the Republic of Korea integration potential. This aspect is relevant in the modern world, since the establishment of mutually beneficial economic relations between the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation can contribute to these states' prosperity. To achieve this goal, the following tasks were solved:

1. To study the socio-economic and political situation of the Republic of Korea on the world stage;
2. To identify the most optimal way to develop the Republic of Korea integration potential.

The main methods for solution were the method of producing ideas and literature analysis. The materials used in the research were scientific articles, mass media and free Internet sources.

«South Korea is one of the leading developed economies in the world and has a stable financial system» [1, p. 45]. However, as with any state, there are some difficulties in the Republic of Korea economy, the main ones are: agricultural products and education.

As it is considered, South Korean agriculture cannot fully provide its population with the necessary products, namely, there is a shortage of beef, vegetables and fruits. The solution to this problem can be economic integration with the Russian Federation. This country's agricultural potential is able not only to provide its own state, but also to carry out export deliveries.

The Republic of Korea education system is characterized by fierce competition among students, which puts enormous pressure on them. Higher education is quite expensive, and the enrollment system does not always prove to be objective. The development of socio-economic integration with Russia will contribute to the foreign students increase, being more beneficial for Korean students and have a positive impact on their education level.

Obviously, building new economic ties is not an easy task. Moreover, such relationship examples may raise questions from the third part, the United States. They have been political and economic partners of the Republic of Korea since their foundation. However, such integration seems to be quite promising for both sides. Nevertheless, political factors will play a decisive role in this matter.

Thus, we believe that the implementation of social and economic integration between the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation on the basis of politically neutral relations is quite possible. Moreover, such cooperation will have a positive impact not only on the economies of the interacting countries, but also on the economy of the Republic of Belarus, since our country is in close economic relations with the Russian Federation.

This study is only theoretical in origin and is unlikely to become the basis for such relationships formation. This issue's more detailed consideration may contribute to the most optimal way discovery to develop the Republic of Korea integration potential.
