MILITARY DOCTRINES AS INDICATORS OF MODERN POLITICAL SITUATION IN THE WORLD

State borders security support and ability of the country to respond the military threats are the most important mission of every independent state. Traditionally these questions are military doctrine subjects, which coordinate domestic affairs aspects in the sphere of national security enforcement. The content of the military doctrine of any state is a constant interest of the bordering countries.

In the latest decades new direction of military partnership appeared – it is coordination of military doctrines of different states with aim to demilitarize relations among them, enforce international peace and stability.

The main principles and contents of military doctrines are subjects of international consultations, their results are advised to be officially fixed in documents. For example, in 1983 the General Assembly of the UNO accepted a resolution 38/55 which rejected the development, dissemination, propaganda of the political and war doctrines and conceptions aimed at the foundation of legacy of being first to apply the nuclear weapons. On December 21st, 1990, The UN General Assembly passed the decision to oblige the Armed Forces of all countries only to prevent wars, provide the individual and collective self-defense, undertake joint actions with the respect to peace threats, peace violation and acts of aggression. The defense potential as it is must demonstrate the true defense requirements.

The goal of the present report is to characterize the current military policy of the world dominating countries through its main state documents and perform basic measures of preventing from military invasion in the state's internal affairs. The main method is based on analysis of military doctrines and other legislative acts of the United States of America, Russia, China and its strategic partners. The objects of analysis were combat actions in Libya, Iraq, Chechnya, the Ukraine and documents which determined the military policy of the countries which took part in these conflicts.

The result of this research suggests an opportunity to understand political and military relations among the world giants and find out the reasons and means of prevention from their military interventions on the basis of the latest events.
